Summary

Melinda White serves as the Director of Human Resources for Ratliff & Taylor as well as a Senior Consultant specializing in Career Transition. Melinda works with high-level executive job seekers in both one-on-one and small group settings.

Melinda began her 16-year career in Human Resources working in various roles at Applied Industrial Technologies. She spent several years in a Fortune 1000 company as a Corporate HR Manager. She then began her own national HR Consulting firm, specializing in working with organizations to improve their HR business processes and provide strategic guidance to executives and managers in the areas of talent acquisition, talent development, training and coaching in consumer products, healthcare, manufacturing, retail and health and wellness. From there she served as Director of HR for a regional professional services firm.

She holds a Master of Education in Adult Learning and Development from Cleveland State University, and has used her coaching expertise extensively in all her roles at Ratliff & Taylor.
