Dr. Velvet Lanningham is an Executive Coach with Ratliff & Taylor's Leadership Development practice. She possesses over 25 years of management consulting experience in both the public and private sectors, including a number of organizational management studies associated with implementing virtual work as a means to enhance organizational efficiency and effectiveness.

Velvet brings over 25 years of experience providing executive training and consulting for numerous Fortune 500 companies. She has developed and managed global projects for organizations including Ford, Chrysler, General Dynamics, Hewlett Packard Enterprise and Tenet Health Corp. and locally for Jones Day, Summa Health and United Way of Greater Cleveland. Her work focuses on the implementation and utilization of information and technologies to solve business problems.

Velvet's areas of expertise include executive coaching, leadership development, strategic planning, technology-enhanced teaching and learning, competency assessment and development, emotional intelligence, and appreciative inquiry.

As an Associate Professor of Management at Kent State, Velvet teaches and mentors students at the undergraduate, graduate and doctoral levels. Her research accomplishments include publications and presentations in numerous national and international journals and conferences.

Personal Coaching Philosophy:

I believe we are all fully capable of achieving the change we desire. Through professional, thoughtful, and generative coaching, I help clients explore their desires and identify paths to exceptionalism. As a coach, I call upon a variety of tools, techniques, and personal & professional experiences to aid clients in identifying pathways, mobilizing around awareness, and achieving both personal and professional career aspirations.
